COMPUTER Based Exams 2020

Technical Specifications required for November 2020

The tests will be delivered at the test centre where you have registered using Mercer Mettl's platform, which is a browser-based system: there is no need to download specific software to access the tests.

Details about technical specification requirements a follow:

Devices: tests will be taken in centre on a PC, Laptop or Mac. Candidates are strongly recommended to use their own laptop, which must have a webcam.

Please note: The Mercer Mettl platform is not supported on mobile devices (eg. phones / smartphones / pads / tablets).

Browser: tests can be run on the following compatible browsers:

Chrome version: 63 and above

Firefox version: 52 and above

Safari version: 12 and above

Microsoft Edge: 84.0.522.63 and above

The tests will be invigilated by a trained staff member and will also be monitored using Mercer Mettl's internal systems: This is to ensure the security and integrity of the test.

You will be able to familiarise yourself with the test software in advance, but as the test format itself remains the same, Cambridge University will not publish any additional practice tests.

You can find out more information about the test format on the test specific pages on the Cambridge website.

For more details visit the Cambridge Admissions Support Site. They will be updating and adding frequently asked questions, so check back regularly.
